

SKAGIT COUNTY PUBLIC HEALTH

Developmental Disabilities Program

Resource Guide

Welcome!

The Skagit County Developmental Disabilities Program provides a range of supports and services to enhance the lives of Skagit County citizens with developmental disabilities and their families. This guide has information about public, private and non-profit agencies that provide services or resources for individuals with developmental disabilities living in Skagit County. Some of the resources are local to our community, while others are regional or national organizations that may be beneficial to you.

Because we could not fit every relevant resource into one guide, we would like to refer you to another community resource for assistance with basic needs such as food and shelter, as well as drug and alcohol treatment, counseling, and volunteerism.

Community Action of Skagit County is a community-based organization that provides services and advocates for the needs of those experiencing poverty. Community Action has 39 anti-poverty programs, including the Critical Needs program, Energy Assistance Program, Women, Infants & Children Program (WIC), and the Veteran's Assistance Program. Please contact Community Action of Skagit County for more information about these programs or other resources not found in this guide.

Assistive TECHNOLOGY

Assistive technology (AT) tools may greatly improve your chances of success in school, work and life by increasing self-reliance and independence.

Examples of AT devices include: wheelchairs, adapted clothing, Velcro, toys, computers, seating systems, powered mobility, augmentative communication devices, assisted listening devices and visual aids.

- Take the time to learn all you can about possible tools, adaptations and strategies before making any real investment.
- Include the individual in the selection process. The "perfect" item can't help if it's not used.
- Consider where it will be used - home, school, work etc. The right technology in one setting may be entirely wrong in another.
- Instructions should be brief and easy to read, operating should be clear and simple.
- Ask past and present users how well it holds up.
- Even with the best instructions, you might need technical support. Select products that offer online and toll-free support (1-800 numbers) also check the length, cost, and limitations of product warranties. Success often depends on having a good technical support system.

- Washington Assistive Technology Act Program (WATAP):
